Better. Faster. Cheaper.

Ann Arbor Plastics President, Tony Glinke firmly believes that, "The customers' problems are our problems." He describes the Ann Arbor Plastics team as a group of plastic display geeks who are obsessive-compulsive about creating solutions for the everyday display concern; and they do just that.

Ann Arbor Plastics connects with each customer to determine the best possible display solution, including the fastest and cheapest way to complete the job. Form follows function within each design. The materials used are robust, scratch-resistant, and impervious to breakage; every piece is designed and manufactured to last.

Ann Arbor Plastics delivers every product within one to three weeks from placement of the order. A quick turnaround is possible because of Ann Arbor Plastics' central location within North America – convenient, reliable, fast transportation on the outskirts of a major world manufacturing center with all associated resources.

The AAP Team is guided by three words: Better – Faster – Cheaper. They constantly trim time and waste from production and for every piece produced their goal remains to create a quality product from the first piece to the last. Workmanship and materials are guaranteed to be superior and every order is traceable from order entry to delivery at the customer's location using full scale enterprise management software.

Founded in 1972 as a reseller of plastic materials, Ann Arbor Plastics was purchased in 1991 by Tony Glinke, a mechanical engineer with an MBA from the University of Michigan. Tony changed the company's focus to custom design and fabrication and began partnering with clients to find creative solutions to their design and distribution challenges. Today, Ann Arbor Plastics supplies plastic displays to national retailers, including Borders Group and Limited Too.
